Controversial general gets E. Visayas command

By Raul Pineda

A controversial general who has been a thorn in the side of the military establishment for years has been named to command the Eastern Visayas Military District (EVD) in Cebu. General Romeo B. Sison, 50, is a decorated war hero who served in the Philippine Army during the 1970s and 1980s. He is known for his aggressive and sometimes controversial tactics. Sison's appointment to the EVD command has sparked controversy among military and civilian officials. Some praise his military prowess, while others question his leadership style and political affiliations. The appointment is seen as a move by the Department of Defense to strengthen the military presence in the Eastern Visayas region.

PBA Board rejects Talk 'N Text appeal

By [Name]

THE PHILIPPINE Basketball Association (PBA) has rejected an appeal filed by Talk 'N Text (TNT) against the decision of league commissioner Ramon Fernandez to strip TNT of its 2010 PBA All-Star Game MVP award.

Fernandez announced the decision after TNT's player, Ramon Fernandez, was named MVP of the 2010 PBA All-Star Game. TNT had filed an appeal with the PBA Board, claiming that Fernandez was ineligible to win the award because he was a coach for TNT during the 2009-2010 season.

The PBA Board, however, ruled against TNT, stating that Fernandez was eligible to win the award because he was a player for TNT during the 2009-2010 season. The board also ruled that TNT's appeal was filed too late.

TNT's general manager, Ramon Fernandez, said that he was disappointed with the decision but would accept it. He said that he would continue to work hard to win the 2010 PBA All-Star Game MVP award.

Quantity over quality

The Philippines has a long history of being a country where quantity is valued over quality. This is evident in many aspects of our society, from the way we do business to the way we live our lives.

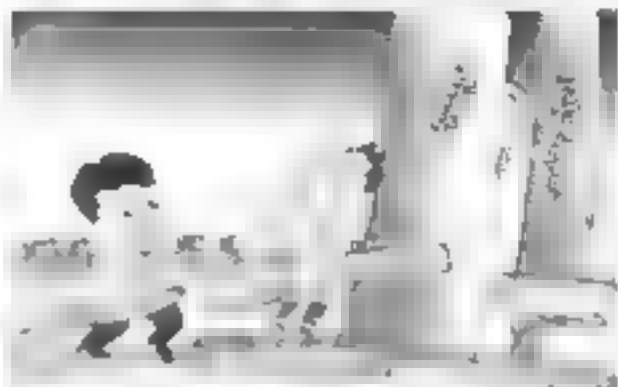

Short change

One of the most common examples of this is in the way we do business. We often see companies that are more interested in making a quick profit than in providing quality products or services. This is why we often see so many companies that are only in it for the short term.

Another example is in the way we live our lives. We often see people who are more interested in having a lot of things than in having a few good ones. This is why we often see so many people who are always buying new things, even if they already have a lot of things that are still good.

One of the reasons for this is that we often see people who are more interested in having a lot of things than in having a few good ones. This is why we often see so many people who are always buying new things, even if they already have a lot of things that are still good.

The Alabama Ombudsman, a state agency that monitors government operations and protects citizens' rights, is facing a significant budget cut. This is a concerning trend for a watchdog agency that has been instrumental in exposing government inefficiencies and protecting citizens' rights. The Ombudsman's budget has been cut for several years, and this latest cut is particularly egregious. It is a clear signal that the state government is not committed to transparency and accountability. The Ombudsman's work is essential for ensuring that the government operates in the best interests of the people. Without adequate funding, the Ombudsman's ability to perform its duties is severely compromised. It is time for the state government to recognize the value of the Ombudsman and provide it with the resources it needs to continue its work.

Impose VAT on IPPs, local execs urge

By James Sanabina

The 11 local executives of the Philippine Electricity Association (PEA) have urged the government to impose value-added tax (VAT) on independent power producers (IPPs) to level the playing field with state-owned utilities.

The PEA executives, who met in a closed-door session in Manila, said that the current tax structure for IPPs is unfair and that it hinders the growth of the private power sector.

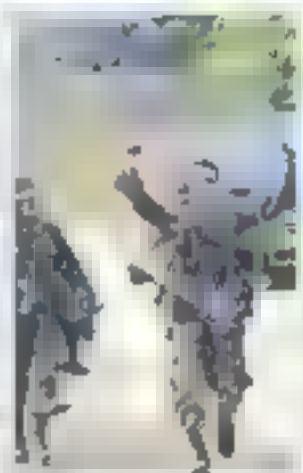

They argued that state-owned utilities are exempt from VAT, while IPPs are required to pay it. This, they claim, gives state-owned utilities an unfair competitive advantage.

The executives also expressed concern over the government's plan to increase the tax on electricity. They believe that this will further disadvantage IPPs and lead to higher electricity prices for consumers.

The PEA executives also urged the government to provide more incentives for IPPs, such as tax breaks and subsidies, to encourage investment in the sector.

They also called for the government to streamline the regulatory process for IPPs, to reduce the time and cost of doing business.

The executives said that they will continue to monitor the government's actions and will take further action if necessary to protect the interests of the private power sector.

Figure 1 consists of three panels, (a), (b), and (c), each showing a line graph of the mean squared error (MSE) of the maximum likelihood estimator (MLE) of the variance component σ^2 as a function of the number of iterations (from 0 to 1000). The y-axis for all panels is labeled 'MSE' and ranges from 0 to 0.001. The x-axis is labeled 'Number of iterations' and ranges from 0 to 1000. Panel (a) shows MSE vs. number of iterations for different sample sizes n (10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 500, 1000). Panel (b) shows MSE vs. number of iterations for different values of the variance component σ^2 (0.001, 0.002, 0.005, 0.01, 0.02, 0.05, 0.1, 0.2, 0.5, 1.0, 2.0, 5.0, 10.0, 20.0, 50.0, 100.0, 200.0, 500.0, 1000.0). Mining industry seen as RP's growth engine

MANILA, Jan. 10 (PDI) — The mining industry is seen as the Philippines' growth engine, according to a report by the Philippine Mining Association (PMA).

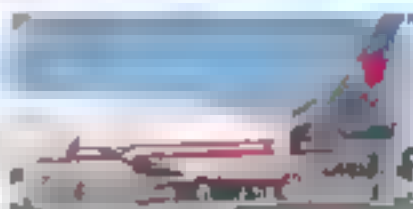

The report, titled "Mining: The Philippines' Growth Engine," was released by the PMA on January 10.

The report states that the mining industry is a key sector for the Philippines' economic growth, particularly in the context of the global demand for minerals.

The report also highlights the need for the government to improve the regulatory framework for the mining industry to attract more investment and ensure sustainable development.

The report further notes that the mining industry has the potential to create significant employment opportunities and contribute to the country's foreign exchange earnings.

The report concludes by calling for a more proactive role from the government in supporting the mining industry and ensuring that its growth benefits the entire country.

Shang-Mac attack

THE VIEW from the main pool

By Pam Pastor

YOU'RE in paradise and you don't want to leave. Shangri-La's Mactan Island Resort's 10:30 shuttle bus is about to leave for Cebu City but a lot of the seats are empty. The next one leaves in an hour and it's safe to say that it wouldn't be full either.

It seems that no one wants to leave paradise—and that is no big surprise.

The cool and spacious lobby welcomed you at noon. You should have waited for your turn to check-in like good adults are supposed to but the lure of the beach was too strong. You ran down to the sandy shore and let the tide kiss your toes. Your jeans contrasted with the bikinis and the sarongs that were in abundance but it didn't matter. When the water beckons, one must come.

After finally finding the strength to tear yourself away from the beach, you went back to your room but only to change into proper beachwear. Eager to go out in the sun again, you stood in front of the elevator, tapping your foot impatiently. When it finally opened, a familiar face walked out.

"Uy, si Boy Abunda," the cleaning lady whispered loudly from behind her cart of hotel toiletries, trying to catch the attention of the bell-boy who was standing nearby. The talk show master was fiddling with the keycard and open-
